

People

CHILD STARS

THEN & NOW

CATCHING UP WITH
MORE THAN 100
SHOWBIZ KIDS. WHERE ARE THEY TODAY?

DISPLAY UNTIL 9/22/08

$11.99/$5.95 $15.99/$8.65

People SPECIALS

In the Game

PEPSI AD

HALLIE KATE EISENBERG

THEN The kid from those memorable '90s Pepsi commercials (and, later, the 1998 film Paulie).

NOW Fifteen years old and a vegetarian who juggles and also enjoys competing as an equestrienne, she appeared in the 2006 film How to Eat Fried Worms. Eisenberg told an online interviewer in 2006 that she hopes to become a doctor. She was featured in the independent film P.J. Her older brother Jesse received good notices in The Squid and the Whale.

Though she gained fame in a Pepsi commercial, Eisenberg no longer drinks much soda.

MY TWO DADS

STACY KEANAN

THEN At 12, Keanan played the coveted kid on My Two Dads, then graduated to a self-absorbed teen on Step by Step.

NOW After studying art history at UCLA, Keanan, 33, has returned to acting in indie flicks like 2006's Hidden Secrets and the upcoming Amish comedy Holyman Undercover. Her recent run in a production of Moment in the Sun was "a death-defying experience," she says.

Keanan acted with dads Paul Reiser and Greg Evigan.

